Look Mum! — both hands

This gadget is called "Type-Right" and it allows you to learn to accurately speed type without the time and expense of evening classes.

Type-Right is a computerised teaching aid that guides you step-by-step on the path to becoming a proficient typist. First, it familiarises you with the keyboard. Then, with the aid of the manual, you practice finger placement and begin typing simple words, before moving on to complete sentences and paragraphs.

Main features of the machine include four Lesson Keys, a Class Key which offers nine lessons at various skill levels, and a Game Key which introduces you to speed touch typing. In the latter case, a series of letters creep across the built-in liquid crystal display and must be entered into the keyboard.

During each lesson, all relevant information is displayed on screen to gauge progress. A Speed Key calculates typing speed, while an Error Key determines accuracy and counts the number of mistakes.

Type-Right retails for just $69.95 and is available from your nearest Dick Smith Electronics store. For further information contact Dick Smith Electronics Pty Ltd, PO Box 321, North Ryde, NSW 2113. Telephone (02) 888 3200.
